➤ In parallel to the traditional – security, video surveillance, access, fire safety, and other security systems – we also offer special security solutions that are specifically and especially significant for strategically important facilities.

➤ In parallel to the traditional – security, video surveillance, access, fire safety, and other security systems – we also offer special security solutions that are specifically and especially significant for strategically important facilities.

We offer radar systems that can identify whether a foreign object has appeared in a territory, thermo cameras that can work over great distances and in complicated conditions (such as, in fog or snow), various solutions for control of infrared rays and electromagnetic fields for perimeter security, various optical bending and vibrocables, cable to be buried in the ground for pressure control, and other technical solutions which usually are not used in civil objects, but are very important for increased security facilities. Various factors must be considered when installing these, for example, large territories, the possibility of an aggressive environment (risks of explosion), increased requirements for approaching a facility, various electromagnetic radiation, etc.

Full development cycle in one place. From consultations to construction and maintenance.
